THE K12 COLLECTIVE

About the Family

I was born and raised in Augusta, Maine, and remained there until attending Liberty University in Lynchburg, Va., in 2019. I graduated from Liberty in 2023 with a Bachelor of Science degree in exercise science. After spending the summer after graduation back in Maine, I felt the Lord leading me to move back to Virginia.

During my first year back in Lynchburg, I worked first as a personal trainer at a fitness studio and then as a paraprofessional in an early childhood special education classroom. During this time, I felt the Lord leading me into full-time ministry.

About My Church Plant

I am serving with The K12 Collective, a church focused on equipping people to fulfill their role in the Great Commission through relational discipleship. The mission is to train up disciples of Jesus who make more disciples in their sphere of influence and to mobilize followers of Jesus to communicate the gospel and make disciples in local and global contexts.

I will be serving specifically in women's discipleship, helping provide encouragement, accountability, and resources to the women of our church to be intentional disciple makers wherever God has placed them.
