About the Family

I am married to my best friend, Heydy Perez, and we have two beautiful children, Jazzie and Dante—with another baby on the way! We also have a playful black Great Dane named Nala, who keeps life extra fun.

A few personal values that guide everything I do in ministry are: serve humbly, love genuinely, and glorify God in all.

We're trusting God to provide partners who believe in the mission and want to come alongside us through prayer and financial support. Your generosity helps us continue planting, discipling, and raising up leaders in this growing ministry.

About My Church Plant

At 23, after being trained at a small, local Bible institute, I planted Iglesia Bautista Su Casa in Houston, Texas—a multigenerational Spanish-speaking church for Latino families. At 27, while still pastoring Su Casa, God opened the door for me to join the Send Network through Champion Forest Baptist Church, where I received further training in church planting. I was ordained and sent out to continue the mission of reaching the Hispanic community with the gospel.

Today, I serve as the lead pastor of First Baptist Church in Pampa, Texas, where we are planting a gospel-centered community for Latino families and training up new leaders for ministry. In this season, God has placed a clear calling on my heart to raise up the next pastor from within our church family.
