THE K12 COLLECTIVE

About the Family

I was born in and grew up around the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, area and moved to Lynchburg, Virginia, in fall of 2019, when I began attending Liberty University studying Christian Leadership and Church Ministries. From the time I was in high school, I knew the Lord was calling me into ministry as a missionary and to work with church planters.

About My Church Plant

The K12 Collective exists as a church focused on mobilizing every believer into a disciple-maker. Our Lord Jesus has called all believers to make disciples in the Great Commission, and we believe the best way to do that is through building relationships.

I am serving as an associate pastor with an emphasis on foreign and domestic missions. We believe in giving people as many options as possible to experience how different people live their lives on mission through different missions opportunities. I also gather and develop different resources to help our members proactively evangelize and disciple others in their sphere of influence.
