THE WELL CHURCH OF AMERICUS

About the Family

I am the planter and lead pastor of The Well Church in Americus, Ga., where I am passionate about helping people walk with God and others while welcoming those far from Him.

My wife, Jill, and I live in Americus with our two children, Judah and Jessah, and love investing in the next generation of leaders. I am also the founder of Next Level Neighbor, a community initiative equipping residents to create a place they enjoy with the people they love, and the host of The Americus Podcast, which highlights local leaders, entrepreneurs and neighbors shaping the future of the city.

About My Church Plant

With a background in church planting, leadership development and community engagement, I have a heart for seeing small towns thrive through faith, collaboration and innovation.
