About the Family

My full name is Prakash Karal. I serve as the pastor of a local Nepali church. I was born in Bhutan. Bhutan is a small and beautiful country, but Bhutan is a Buddhist country. In some ways it is like China in its dislike of Christians.

I lived in Nepal for 19 years before moving to Atlanta, Ga., in 2008. I moved to Cincinnati in 2018 to plant a church to reach the large Nepali population in the Greater Cincinnati area. My parents also live here in Cincinnati. My time is spent helping people and sharing the gospel with them.

About My Church Plant

Hallelujah Nepali Ministry seeks to reach the lost in the Greater Cincinnati area. We have a Sunday church service at Rolling Hills Baptist Church, which is our sending church. We also have an after-school program where we help students with their homework and teach English as a Second Language (ESL). Our ministry center is open seven days a week to minister to the Nepali people living in the area.

Not only do we help students with after-school tutoring and ESL, we offer a citizenship class to help Nepalis become U.S. citizens. We help with other needs that might arise since translation is a big need for many. Our church has women's and youth ministry that meet each week.

God is blessing Hallelujah Nepali Ministries.
