HUNTINGTON COMMUNITY CHURCH

About the Family

My wife, Cassidy, and I have been married for just about five years and currently live in Huntington, W.Va. We started dating in high school and later both attended Marshall University. Cassidy and I both feel a strong call to be missionaries to the 10/40 window in the next few years.

To keep it simple, I love sports, drawing, music, watching “The Office,” and sitting around a fire with good company.

About My Ministry

I am a member at Huntington Community Church (HCC) in Huntington, W.Va. I have attended this church for approximately seven and one-half years and have been very involved in the collegiate ministry called Campus Collective (CC), which is operated through HCC.

A lot of my personal ministry consists of discipling young men who desire to grow in their knowledge of and relationship with Jesus. Much of this flows from simply doing life with these guys.

As a North American Mission Board missionary to Marshall University, my ministry responsibilities consist of being the freshman coordinator at CC, overseeing For the City ministries of HCC and CC and overseeing the Connections ministry. I work alongside CC Director Dustin Epperly.
